How solemn dear mother
seems the day
Relentless and cold, now
encumbers thy breast
Here is the tomb of my mother, how mournful the thought That she went to the grave imploring the spirit to sooth my despair
But sleep on dear Mother
it is better to rest
In hall of the dead than to linger in life.

Dear Carolyn,

Enclosed you will find copies of the index cards you requested. I numbered the cards in the order that they appear on microfilm (the number is written in pencil to the right of each card). Also, I attached the receipt for payment to the original request and am sending both for your records.

Sincerely,

Debra Weiss

Carolyn,

In regards to your recent request to the Rockefeller Library, we do indeed have a name index to the early records of York County. I checked the index for you and found that there are seven cards with the name "Anne Pettipoole" and 18 cards with the name "William Pettipoole" (listed as husband of Anne). Each card includes a reference to the official court record where the particular name is mentioned, along with some brief notes.

I can send copies of the index cards to you if you like. The processing charge is $1.00 per page. The cards take up 12 printed pages so the total cost would be $12.00. To proceed, I would first need you to send your name, address and phone number, plus a $12.00 check or money order payable to "The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation", directly to me at the following address:

Question: I heard from Eric Grundset that your library has an "every-name" index to the early records of York County. I am interested in any reference to a family with the name Pettypool (Petty Pool, Pettipool). I

Ms. Hartsough,

Your inquiry was received through our library's web site (http://www.history.org/history/jdrlweb/).

I believe you are referring to the York County Project Biographical File, which is a card file compiled by our Department of Historical Research. The cards cite, and often abstract, original York County records, as well as a few other record sources, such as the Bruton Parish register.

The letters and numbers in the upper left corner of a card identify the source. DOW, for example, refers to books of York County records titled "Deeds, Orders, Wills". The first number, often in parentheses, is a book or volume number; the following number is a page or folio number. If you need to decipher other abbreviations, get back to me and I'll give it a shot.

In citing these records, I suppose you will want to acknowledge the original source as well as our file, since the latter is what you are actually using. I know of no standard format for this. The important thing, I suppose, is to be logical and consistent. Perhaps something like the following would work for you:

York County (Va.) Deeds, Orders, Wills 3:215, as cited in the York County Project Biographical File, Department of Historical Research, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

The cards in the YCP Biog File are headed by a person's name and usually give the date of the record being cited. If you want to include that info in your citation to make it more specific, it might be:

York County (Va.) Deeds, Orders, Wills 3:215 (24 April 1731), as cited on a card filed under "Pettipoole, Wm" in the York County Project Biographical File. . .

Of course, if you are using a lot of these records, you might want to establish some abbreviations that will make your citations a little more concise.

I hope this will be helpful. Good luck with your project.

Question: Hello:

You sent me copies of index cards from the early records of York County for all instances of the surname Pettipoole. I find that I would like to cite some of the notes contained in these cards, but I am uncertain about the proper form of such a citation. I see some identifying information in the upper left hand corner (a combination of letters and numbers plus a single number below the others) of each card. Could you please inform me about what that information refers to and if you have a standard citation format for these index card notes. Thanks.

Carolyn Hartsough

Re: Pettypool-Pettipoole Research in Maryland

Dear Ms. Hartsough:

Thank you for the research assignment. I appreciate it.

The following records and/or indices were checked in colonial Maryland for Pettypool, Pettipool, Peddypool, Peddipool, Bettypool, Beddypool, etc., at the Maryland State Archives:

Probate Records, Colonial, Index, beginning 1634
Testamentary Proceedings, Index, beginning 1657
Marriage Records, Hodges Index, beginning 1674
Marriage Records, Magruders Index, various dates
Marriage Licenses and Records, Index, beginning 1649
Church Records, Marriage Index, beginning 1686
Church Records, Birth and Baptism Index, beginning 1663
Church Records, Death and Burial Index, beginning 1686
Birth Records, Index, beginning 1649
Death Records, Index, beginning 1648
Bible and Tombstone Records, Index, various dates
Naturalizations, Provincial, Index, beginning 1637
Land Patents, Index, beginning 1634
Rent Rolls, Index, beginning 1639
Settlers, Index, various dates
Land Office, Certificates and Petitions, Index, beginning 1669
Land Office, Warrants, Index, beginning 1634
Provincial Court and General Court Records, Index, beginning 1658
Judgment Records, Provincial Court, Index, beginning 1679
Provincial Court and Court of Appeals, Index, beginning 1658
Land Records, Provincial and State, Index, beginning 1658
Chancery Court Records, Index, beginning 1668
Chancery Papers Index (computerized), various dates
Land Records, Annapolis, Index, beginning 1653
Annapolis Records, Index, beginning 1685
Scharf Collection, Index, beginning 1659
Periodicals Index (computerized), various dates
Maryland Historical Magazine Index, various dates
Special Collections (computerized), various dates
Charles Carroll Family Papers, Index, beginning 1651
Archives of Maryland, 72 volumes/indices, beginning 1636

Also, numerous books and indices were checked at the Maryland State Archives in Annapolis and the Maryland Historical Library in Baltimore, including their Genealogy Index, the Main Card Catalog Index, Church Record Index, Dielman-Hayward Index, and Filing Case "A" (unpublished research files).

Bottom line: No new information whatsoever was found on the Pettypool family, absolutely nothing. Even though I found the same two pieces of information that you had already discovered (i. e., William and Ann Pettipoole and son's immigration record, and the Ann Pettypoole vs. Francis Cole complaint), I found nothing more on any member of this family in colonial Maryland.

I regret my search came up empty, but I left no stone unturned in trying to find something on this family. It never materialized.

If I can be of further assistance in researching any colonial Maryland family for you, please let me know. In the interim, I remain,

Very truly yours, permit the traders to give warning of "any designs that the French or Indians may have upon the English." The governor's plan to establish a voluntary trading company passed the assembly but failed to attract sufficient investors.[7]

Nicholson correctly apprehended that the interior trade entailed great perils. In addition to the eight men lost by Byrd in 1684 and 1686, official reports indicated that an "Englishman coming from South Carolina" was "murdered by some unknown Indians near Roanoke River" in 1697. In 1703 the Meherrin confessed to killing five "white men having sevll English goods with them." The men had been in " a bark boat coming down the Maherine River," and the Meherrin, "supposing them to be Spyes come from the Senequa Indians," ambushed them before realizing who they were. Other unrecorded deaths among the traders no doubt occurred.[8]

Because only a few dozen Virginians actively participated in the Indian trade, not many contemporary observers were in a position to comment upon its operations. Most of the available information comes from two men who viewed the trade from opposing perspectives. William Byrd II was a participant and investor. Lieutenant Governor Alexander Spotswood was a staunch critic and reformer. The two men nonetheless offered similar descriptions of the manner in which the trade was conducted.

A few traders were self-employed, but most who venutred among the natives were employed by others. Some Virginians, such as Robert Hicks (or Hix), supervised the purchase of goods from England and the transportation and sale of those goods. Prominent men such as Byrd credited trade goods to hired traders who were "paid in Skins at a certain Price agreed betwixt them." According to Spotswood, "No man of any circumstance has adventur'd any otherways than by trusting goods at a considerable advance to indigent persons, (who had no other way of living,) to be repaid in Skins at their return."[9]

The rigors of competition and the dangers inherent in the trade appear to have steadily eliminated its participants. By 1716 the lieutenant governor reported that the benefits of the Indian trade were "vested in the hands of five or six at most, who all live on the So. side of James River." These individuals had acknowledged that "their annual Import did not exceed £300" and that their profit margins were too small to allow continued operation they should have to curtail their trade "whenever a Govern thought fitt to declare [the existence of] an Indian War." Spot wood held a generally low opinion of the men who actually dea with the natives. The half dozen southside investors employ "all the lose fellows they can pick up" as their factors among t natives, he maintained; and their fraudulent dealings with t Indians had "too frequently incited them to revenge the injusti by private murders." Meanwhile, those who provided the capit acted outside the law. "No orders of the Governm't could effectual to restrain those people from trading," complaine Spotswood, "even when upon an Open breach with the India it has been found necessary to prohibite their Trade."[10]

In spite of his criticisms, however, Spotswood was not abo using the traders' knowledge of the Indians when it served h purposes, suggesting that some of them were men of skill an daring. In October 1713 Spotswood "sent out a detachment 50 of our Trib'y Indians under the Command of two of the Tra ers," Robert Hicks and David Crawley, with orders to perfor the delicate diplomatic task of finding a band of Tuscarora order "to sound their Inclinations towards peace."[11]

The names of only a few of those involved in the inland tra have survived. Cadwallader Jones, one of the earliest tra ers, was still proposing in 1699 to initiate "the discovery of new trade with the Indians" still uncontacted. John Lawson m John Stewart, a Virginian of Scottish descent, trading amon the Catawba in 1701. Stewart, accompanied only by a Sapo Indian, sought with Lawson's party protection from Iroquo raiders. Lawson also encountered a packtrain of thirty horses an four or five men under the leadership of one Massey, a York shireman.[12]

While some men operated in groups, others worked alone. Nin Virginians deposited bond in Carolina in 1711. Groups tha traded together were allowed to give bond together, thus indi cating that William Dettypoole, Thomas Edwards, and Henr Tally worked cooperatively, as did David Crawley, John Evans and Richard Jones. Richard and George Smith were partner but Nathan Evans, like John Stewart a decade earlier, evidentl worked alone. Robert Hicks, a resident of Wood's settlement o the Appomattox until he moved to the Meherrin River near th fall line, became one of the better-known traders. Nathaniel Urvin may have been associated with Hicks. George Fountain, a free black, was active in the Tuscarora trade. Among the large investors were William Byrd II, John and Robert Bolling, John Evans, Robert Mumford, and Peter, Thomas, and Richard Jones.[13]

The inland trade was highly regionalized. Almost all of those involved lived south of the James River. "They were," declared Spotswood, "the only persons that lived most convenient to carry it on." Most of those who traded to the southwest into South Carolina and Georgia were residents of Prince George County, the northern terminus of the Occaneechee Path. On the other hand, James Lundy, Charles Kimball, William Kimball, Thomas Reeves, and Jacob Colson, who were summoned before the Virginia Council in 1717 to answer charges of "Illegal Trading with the Tuscoruros," all appear to have been residents of Surry County.[14]

Months before the traders ever set forth, trade goods were ordered from England. Spotswood broadly classified the types of goods ordered as "Cloathing, powder, Shott and other European manufactures." Sixteen years later, William Byrd II compiled a similar but more specific list. Trade items, he wrote, consisted "chiefly in Guns, Powder, Shot, Hatchets, . . . Kettles, red & blue Planes, Duffields, Stroudwater blankets, and some Cutlary Wares, Brass Rings and other Trinkets." In the brief Indian vocabulary appended to his History of North Carolina (1714), John Lawson included words commonly used in trade. He listed guns, gunlocks, flints, gunpowder, and shot, of course; but he also included words for axe, knife, awl, needle, hoe, and scissors. Indian terms for blankets, shirts, belts, hats, and footwear indicate the presence of clothing items in the traders' packs. Mixed in with the weapons, tools, and clothing were tobacco, salt, paint, kettles, and native shell money—roanoke and peak. Vermilion dye was an important cosmetic item. "They buy Vermillion of the Indian Traders," Lawson wrote, "wherewith they paint their Faces all over red."[15]

Traders also carried food and medical items for personal use. Snakeroot, for instance, was used "to cure their horses, when they happen to be bit" by rattlesnakes, and traders carried "James-Town weed, so called from Virginia," which was considered

"excellent for curing Burns, and assuaging Inflamations." "honey-tree," resembling a locust but bearing "a Cod, one whereof contains the Seed, the other the Honey," was, accord to Lawson, first brought to the Carolinas by the Indian trac "and propagated by their Seed, at the Apamaticks in Virginia

With trade goods, a meager medical kit, and a few provisi in hand, the trader made up his "Wares" into "Packs" weigh from 150 to 200 pounds. Few of the wares were breakable, the packs needed careful arrangement to survive the const jostling of the trail. Once the horses had been gathered and loac the shipment was ready. In the first decade of the eightee century, before South Carolinians began vigorous competit with the Virginians, as many as "a Hundred Horses" were " ploy'd in one of these Indian Caravans, under the Conduct of or 16 Persons." By the 1720s these large caravans were obsol Indeed, it was rare after 1720 for a packtrain of even fifty hor to be organized. Alexander Spotswood asserted that the la caravans were highly unusual even in the early years of his g ernorship; the traders, he said, "never are above 5 or 6 i Gang."[17] He did not say how many horses would have acc panied five or six men. John Stewart, assisted only by a Sap Indian, had seven packhorses, and William Byrd II indicated t one hundred horses would usually be tended by about fift handlers. Thus, it would appear that one man could successfu manage from five to seven animals. Spotswood's average cara of five or six men, therefore, probably contained about thirty- horses, each carrying packs holding from 150 to 200 pound trade goods. Such a caravan transported in a single trip so three tons of goods.

The packtrains covered on average about twenty miles a d Necessarily, the trader's primary concern was for his horses, campsites were chosen with an eye to adequate forage and wa The weather posed a series of hazards. Winter cold fronts s temperatures plummeting below freezing; snows hid and bloc the paths. Rain flooded rivers and delayed caravans for hours days; and impetuous traders who entered the flood-swollen wa risked injury, loss of trade goods, and even death. The sum heat of Virginia was notoriously unhealthy, as was that of Carolina piedmont. Accidents, including snakebites, inevita

NAMES OF PRINCE EDWARD VOTERS IN THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION IN NOVEMBER, 1840

It was the practice for many years for voters to declare publicly their choice of candidate in an election and to be recorded by name as voting for such a candidate. When Edmund W. Hubard of Buckingham was considering making the race for Congress in 1841, he made a careful survey of the prospects of a Democratic candidate. In reply to his request for information concerning Prince Edward, Branch J. Worsham, clerk and active in Democratic party affairs, sent him a list of the voters, their addresses, and how they voted in the 1840 Presidential election. The list has been preserved in the Edmund W. Hubard Papers and is now, with that collection, some 31,000 items in all, in the Southern Historical Collection of the University of North Carolina Library, Chapel Hill.

EDITOR'S PAGE

Over the past several years the Editor has from time to time made comments about the circulation of this magazine which he thought would be of interest to subscribers and to those who might be contemplating the publication of similar magazines relating to other states. He hopes the following statistics will also prove of interest.

Approximately one out of every seven subscribers to The Virginia Genealogist, or 14 per cent, lives in Virginia and another 2 per cent live in West Virginia. Ten per cent live in Texas and 7 per cent in the District of Columbia. About 12 per cent live in the Far West. The South (excluding Virginia) accounts for 28 per cent. Germany, Sweden and Peru are each represented by one subscriber.

Over the past six years the number of subscribers has remained stable at between 725 and 740, but there is a considerable turn over each year and only 45 per cent of the original subscribers in 1957 remain, although purchases of back copies make 65 per cent of the present subscribers hold complete sets of the magazine.

At the end of the first year, 185 subscribers did not renew and an additional 89 stopped at the end of volume two, to whom must be added 49 who subscribed to that volume alone. A similar situation has existed in each succeeding year. As of 15 July 1962, 165 subscribers to volume five (1961) had not resubscribed for volume six.

The Virginia Genealogist is currently received by about seventy libraries throughout the country.

Much creditable work is being done in the field of Virginia genealogy. The Editor welcomes articles correcting or amplifying previously published accounts of Virginia families or containing the results of work on families which have never before been treated in print. Manuscripts which are submitted should be of general interest and thoroughly documented and should be accompanied by return postage.

The Editor is solely responsible for the general policies, printing, distribution and sale of this periodical. Neither the Editor nor The Virginia Genealogist assumes responsibility for errors of fact or opinion expressed by contributors.

Report of non-delivery of magazines must be made within one month after the quarter they are dated if a replacement is to be secured.

BRITISH MERCANTILE CLAIMS

1775 - 1803

In the years immediately before the American Revolution, British mercantile houses operated numerous stores in Virginia which supplied the needs of the local residents. When hostilities began British property was confiscated and the Virginians refused to pay such debts as remained due on the books of the various firms.

The Treaty of Peace of 1783 provided for the settlement of debts owed British merchants. It was not until some years later, however, that it was possible for suits to be instituted for recovery in Virginia courts and not until around 1800 that special agents of the United States began investigating individual debts to determine their status.

The reports made by the special agents are among the Treasury Papers in the Public Record Office, London. In the abstracts which follow, vital statistics, migrations and a brief statement of financial status have been stressed. In some instances more information about the particular debt under discussion is to be found in the reports. Since the same individual may have owed debts to more than one mercantile firm, some listings of debts are not accompanied by reports.

Crown copyright material in the Public Record Office, London, is used by permission of the Controller of Her Majesty's Stationery Office.

T79/73, v. A
Reports of Wm. W. Hening, 15 June 1802

William Horsley, deceased, Amherst. £4.14.9 by account and £90 by bond, Henderson, McCall & Company. [P. 1]

William Horrell, Amherst. £182.0.6 by bond and account, Amherst and Albemarle stores, Henderson, McCall & Company. [Pp, 1-2] He removed to the waters of Dan River, supposed in the counties of Pittsylvania or Henry, during the war. He had spent nearly the whole of his estate by drunkeness and its consequences and died in a fit of intoxication before the peace, quite insolvent. There was something so very singular in the mode of his death that the circumstance has made a lasting impression on his acquaintances. Being about to cross the river while drunk, he placed a vessel of whiskey under his head, and in that situation suffered his canoe to float down the river, in which posture he was found dead.

John Tuggle, Junr., Albemarle. £20.2.0 by account, Albemarle store, Henderson, McCall & Company. [P. 2]

William 5 Pettipool. Deed trust £30.13.8, 22 April 1777. No mention of the property contained in the deed or where recorded. He moved to Georgia about 1786. If the deed bears date 22 April 1777 as set forth it is liable to be sealed at 2½ for 1 agreeable to the laws of this state.

Sr William 4 & Mary (Caldwell) Pettypool

Col. Edwd. Stokes. £48.19.5½, account. He is dead. Peter Stokes of Lunenburg County, his executor, was possessed of a considerable estate.

Saml. Smith. Died about 1790; was possessed of sufficient property in Nottoway County. His children shortly after his decease removed to South Carolina and Kentucky.

Peter Garland. £1.6.0½. [See above]

Wm. Harris. Removed to Halifax upwards of fifteen years ago.

[P. 19] Mary Evans. Married George Moore in 1783 and removed to Prince Edward County. George Moore since dead. She is still possessed of property sufficient to discharge all her debts.

Lewellin Williamson. Account, £14.4.1½. He has repeatedly since 1783 experienced a variety of fortune, being a noted gamester. At present it would be difficult to recover that amount by law. He resides in Halifax County.

Cornelius Crenshaw and Bartlett Crenshaw. Bond for £6.14.0 . Cornelius is able.

Jno. Cunningham. Bond for £19.16.10½. It cannot be discovered that such a person resided in this county.

John Cureton. Account for £1.19.10 3/4. Removed to the southern states about twelve or fifteen years past.

Bartlett. Estes. Note for £4.7.2 3/4. He formerly resided in Lunenburg County and removed to Halifax County about 1790 and there died.

David Johnson. Account, £8.15.1 3/4. Removed to Carolina about 1787.

Joseph Johnston. Account, £4.13.3½. Removed several years past and is now dead.

Isaac Johnston. Account, £4.1.4½. Died many years past; estate divided.

Jno. Journey. Account, £2.16.8½. Died many years past; his widow and children live in Prince Edward County.

Thos. Clark. Account, £2.8.5½. Removed about 1795.

Bryan Lester Junr. Account, £4.10.7¼. Removed abou 1795.

[P. 20] Abram Murray. Account, £1.8.1½. Died in Jan. 1784 insolvent for many years. He owed several hundreds of pounds to British merchants and died posses of very little property and that was under mortgage.

Jos. Minor. Account, £13.9.4½. Died about 1784 or 1785. His widow Edith Minor administered on his estate in Lunenburg and removed about 1797 to Kentucky.

Danl. Malone. Account, £72.3.8½. Removed to Halifa
County about ten years past, where he died.

Wm. Nance Senr. Account, £3.6.11. Removed from Lunenburg about 1784.

Wm. Nance Junr. Account, £2.19.11. He has no prope

Jno. Pamplin Junr. Account, £3.17.2 3/4. Removed t

Coswell 5 Pettipool. £83.15.11 3/4. In 1788 had only one horse; he had previously possessed considerable property which he conveyed to his children to prevent the recovery of his debts. About 1787 he was sued in Lunenburg County Court for a large debt which had been contracted previous to the conveyance. The plaintiff had execution upon part of the same property and had th same condemned and sold. The property remaining in the possession of his children is still liable.

Christr. Roberton. Account, £7.9.2 3/4. Suit was brought in Lunenburg Court for this claim. The defenda was very wealthy. The plaintiffs dismissed the suit without trial at August Court 1798.

[Pp. 20-21] Francis Robertson. Account, £7.3.4. Di many years before the peace of 1783. The estate is su ficient and is divided among the legatees. The executo is also dead. The legatees were too young to be acqua ed with the transaction.

Store. He died before 1788 possessed of small property

It being a very unusual thing before the last war i this part of the country to take any receipt from a British factor for the payment of money, delivery of tobacco, wheat, etc., towards the account then due in store, few executors, administrators or even the origi debtor can produce any voucher against a single claim. Not one man in twenty ever required a receipt from his merchant in this part of the country.

Henry Stokes. Account, £12.8.11 3/4. He has a receipt in full for this debt, payment being made to P. W. Jackson, the collector for Thomas Gordon.

T79/79
Reports of George Craghead
Special Agent for Lunenburg County

Debts due Buchanan Hastie & Company [pp. 19-52]:

[Pp. 22-23] Wm. Pamplin Junr. Bond, £13.2.8½. This debt has been entirely charged and a new bond executed to Jas. Jemison and Rd. Cammeron as surviving partners of Buchanan Hastie & Company on 20 May 1796. His property within ten years past was more considerable than at any time in 1783 or 1784.

[P. 23] Richard Ingram. Bond, £83.18.8½. Died many years ago possessed of more property than would pay all his debts after the claims that were made known to his widow and administratrix. There were not less than eight or nine slaves besides personal estate to be divided.

Edward Slaughter. Deed trust, £68.19.7½. He has for many years been insolvent.

Frederick Browder. Bond, £15.2.7 3/4. Removed to Halifax Co., Va., in 1787.

Henry Blagrove Junr. Was possessed of much property about 1785 when he removed to Pittsylvania County and from thence about 1792 to Kentucky.

[Pp. 23-24] Anthony Crafton. Bond, £15.5.7½. Removed about 1789.

[P. 24] John Cabiness. Bond, £1.15.4½. Removed to Kentucky in 1793; was able to pay his debts.

Wm. Fisher. Bond, £10.17.6 3/4. Died several years past and insolvent.

John Glenn. Bond, £35.10.-. Removed to Georgia or South Carolina about 1793; since dead and his children inherit some of his property.

John Glenn and Thos. Gafford. Bond, £14.4.3. Gafford removed before 1790 to South Carolina.

Jonathan Graday. Bond, £21.14.4½. Removed to Halifax County and was insolvent ever since the peace. The records of Halifax Court will show him returned "no effects."

Wm. Hays. Bond, £6. Removed to North Carolina in 1784.

David Owen. Bond, £18.1.6½. In 1774 and 1775 he was taxed with a small piece of land and afterwards possessed less property.

Lunenburg

Barnett Owen. Deed, £49.2.11, from the claimants showing they neglected to have the deed fully proved by three witnesses and recorded in due time (eight months). He removed many years ago.

William Pettipool Junr. Note, £25.16.9½. Removed about 1787 to South Carolina; since dead and some of his property brought back to Lunenburg County by his children.

Francis Robertson. Note, £7.15.-. He died before 1781, left estate very sufficient. His son Francis Robertson who possesses one-fourth of the estate still resides in Lunenburg County. The widow and other two children moved to South Carolina.

John Glenn. Account, £9.6.3½. He removed to Georgia or South Carolina about 1793; since dead and left some small property.

David and Frederick Moss. Account, £14.0.1 3/4. Removed to Brunswick County some years ago.

David Owen. Account, £3.16.3½ at Osborne Store. Removed to the western country; no property except small piece of land since the peace.

John Atkinson. Bill, £22.18.3 3/4, Charlotte Store. Removed to South Carolina about 1784.

[Pp. 24-25] James Barton, deceased. Can discover nothing about this man.

[P. 25] Matthew Hubbard, Account £12.10.0 3/4, Charlotte Store. Died about 1785 or 1786; very poor in 1774 and 1775; no property taxed except a small piece of land.

John Foster Junr. £17.16.8½, Meherrin Store. Removed to Georgia about 1789 and is since dead.

Wm. Gordon. Account, £16.10.5 3/4, Meherrin Store. Removed to South Carolina about 1783 possessed of property and is since dead.

Perrie Howlett. £7.9.1 3/4, Meherrin Store. Removed to the South many years past very poor and not possessed of a sufficience to pay his debts.

Joseph Hawkins. £4.3.4. Removed to the South about 1780.

Arthur Herring. Account, £8.9.2. Stephen Herring, the executor in Lunenburg, says he has sufficient assets to discharge all debts.

Robt. Harding. Account, £2.14.0 3/4. He denies the justice of the demand.

John Hightower Junr. Account, £5.9.3. There are numerous claims against him. He died some few years past, insolvent, and was so accounted for at least fifteen years past.

Wm. Dozier. Account, £11.2.6, Meherrin Store in Lunenburg County. Removed to Georgia or South Carolina

SOME DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS

1787 - 1790

Contributed by Robert Y. Clay
Richmond, Virginia

Among the collection of state records at the Virginia State Library is a large body of papers transferred from the Auditor's Office. The personal property and land tax books comprised a portion of these records. Less frequently used have been the papers in Auditor's item #148, Insolvent Land and Property.

These papers are frequently valuable in giving indication of migrations within Virginia and to other states. Some of the lists on which notations of migrations are entered are transcribed hereafter.

accompanied Bartholomew to Virginia on the Safety in August 1635.[9]

By 24 March 1662/3 Bartholomew had moved to Currituck, N.C.,[10] from which he continued to dispose of his Virginia property until as late as 3 July 1667, when he sold a Negro man to John Carraway, Sr., husband of his step-daughter Anne (Foster) (Williamson) Carraway.[11] It has been stated that Bartholomew was succeeded by his step-son Major Richard Foster alias Hoskins.[12] We have yet to find any evidence that Bartholomew Hoskins had any surviving children.

List of Taxables for 1762 in Granville County, NC

by Ransom McBride, 1113 Seabrook Ave., Cary, NC 27511

(Note: with special assistance of Jo Anna B. McDaniel, 3629 Brinkley Dr., Raleigh, NC 27604 - a former resident and native of Granville Co., NC)

PART I

INTRODUCTION. By 1760, colonial Granville County had lost the western half of its confines to newly created Orange County, but it still held on to an area that included today's counties of Franklin, Granville, Warren and Vance. This situation would last only until 1764, when over half of its area would be taken to form Bute County, a political entity that would disappear in 1779 when it was divided into the counties of Franklin and Warren. For Granville County the years around 1762 saw more than local changes in its boundaries. The French and Indian War was ongoing from 1755 - 1763, and hostile Indian depredations urged on by the French along the Catawba River of North Carolina drove out hundreds of settlers. From 1756-59 in Rowan County alone, "the number of taxables dropped from an estimated fifteen hundred...to just eight hundred..."[1]

In early 1760 Fort Dobbs (near today's Statesville, NC) was attacked, Bethabara and Bethania (Moravian communities north of Salem, NC, now part of Winston-Salem) were threatened, and by June, the Cherokees ambushed and inflicted heavy casualties on a British Army force of some 1,600 in what is now the southwestern part of North Carolina. These events were not heartening signs to settlers on the frontier, and many turned to safer ground east of the Yadkin River, some known to have moved eastward into then Orange and Granville Counties. Although Granville was some 100 miles east of the nearest hostile Indians, it served as a refuge for some of the fleeing settlers from Rowan. Some kinsmen and friends had probably settled there. However, when the frontier again became relatively quiet after the Indians were defeated and a peace treaty was signed in December 1761, some of the ex-Rowan County settlers and others moved again westward. Support for this thought is amply seen in the lengthy list of delinquents and insolvents for 1762 in Granville County at the end of this article as well as the list for 1763. A definitive study of these lists of taxables would no doubt yield interesting studies of these early settlers and their migratory inclinations.

In the early 1760's, Granville residents were also beginning to experience what was later known as the Regulator movement. In 1759, Reuben SEARCY (see his name in HENDERSON's tax district) circulated a petition which accused the Attorney General of North Carolina with charging outrageous fees and also preventing the appointment of Justices of the Peace in northern Granville County. These accusations were again taken up in 1765 by George SIMS, schoolmaster of the NUTBUSH community in Granville, who charged that the people were being made to suffer through "excessive taxes, high quit-rents, extortionate fees, and fraudulent accounting of public monies"[2] by the malpractices of the County court. With such strong utterances made against the county and provincial authorities, one wonders how many people left Granville due to these alleged burdens on the populace. The Regulator movement was also active in neighboring Orange County, as events were to prove, so frontier lands probably beckoned many who were feeling oppressed by the "county cliques."

Granville County in these years was also the scene of migration from the northern colonies, primarily before the French and Indian War. The arrival of Shubal STEARNS of Boston heralded the organization of the Baptist church in the Sandy Creek community in 1755. This nucleus grew later into the Sandy Creek Association in 1758 with which "all the separate Baptist churches in Virginia and the Carolinas were affiliated..."[3] If one were to compare the survivable tax lists of Granville over several years of this period with those from near counties as far as migratory patterns are concerned, such migration should be better understood. Few studies have addressed the events of these early years, but perhaps the publication of this and other lists of taxables will give encouragement in this direction.

COLONIAL TAXATION IN NORTH CAROLINA (1762). The procedure for preparing a List of Taxables in North Carolina in detail was drawn up by the General Assembly in 1743 and enacted by Governor Gabriel JOHNSTON, a Scotsman who had taught Oriental languages at the University of St. Andrews. The new law's provisions included the following steps:

1. The Justices of each county, "at the next Court to be held for their respective Counties after the first Day of May next, and so yearly," will issue a warrant directing Constables in each of the respective tax districts in their respective counties "to go from House to House, . . . and summon the Master or Mistress of every Family, or the Overseer of every Plantation, of which there is no master or Mistress," to "give in, . . . a List, in Writing, of all the Taxables in his or her Family, as a Master, or Mistress, or under his Care as an Overseer; and the Constable shall likewise give in a List, upon Oath, to the said County Court, of all such Persons so warned, and the said List shall contain all the Masters and Mistresses of Families, and Overseers of Plantations, within his District."

2. Every "Justice to whom any such List of Taxables shall be given...shall return the same to the Clerk..." (from "An Act for Obtaining an exact List of Taxables, and for the effectual Collecting as well all Arrears of Taxes, as all other Taxes, for the future due and payable," in The State Records of North Carolina, edited by Walter Clark (Winston and Goldsboro: State of North Carolina), Vol. XXIII, p. 210).

County officials designated the constables and also declared the boundaries for the tax districts within the county.

LIST OF TAXABLES FOR 1762, GRANVILLE COUNTY. On 25 January 1762, a note signed by Samuel JOHNSTON, nephew of Governor Gabriel JOHNSTON, arrived in Granville County ordering "a list of the Taxables for the last year immediately, and as soon as possible . . ."[4]

The results of this order are filed at the North Carolina State Archives in Box #C.R. 044.701.19 in a folder marked "Lists of Taxables for 1762-1763." The 1762 version includes lists from twenty tax "districts" whose exact boundaries are unidentified, however, a general area of tax collection in each district can be developed by comparison of the land holdings of each taxable (see map below). These twenty known "districts" are named below in alphabetical order with their respective Justices of the Peace and known Constables:

The lists for each of the above districts follow below and include the primary listing (by the Justice of the Peace) and that of the constable(s). Listing both of the sources is advantageous for two reasons: 1) some names appear on one and not another; 2) spellings of names differ and may help readers resolve some problems. Following the district listings are two lists of insolvents (unable to pay one's debts for various reasons) for 1762.

The Tax Laws of 1743 and 1749 were the only guidelines for county officials involved in the tax collecting effort, and uniformity of a tax format in taking such tax lists was not apparent in 1762. Most lists had separate columns for whites and blacks, a few had a column for mulattoes, and others variously showed columns for free blacks, male slaves (including separate tabulation of those above 16 years of age and below 16) and a "total" column. On all lists, each household of persons appeared to be grouped together, and the first named white person apparently was the "Master" or "Mistress" - the head of household as noted in the much later U.S. Federal Censuses. In arriving at a total figure in a particular tax district, some officials would count a Master or Mistress twice, once under the column for Master or Mistress and again under the column marked "Whites." Because of this discrepancy, grand totals from the original are not shown below.

For the purpose of this article and to conserve space, all persons in each household will be grouped together with the "head of household" being listed first, followed by the other persons in the group. An asterisk will precede the name of each black person and a superscripted "m" will precede each person designated "mulatto" in the original document. All free persons will have at least two names, but slaves will only have a first name, and these will be slightly indented in each household. The sex of each person is normally determined by the first name, however in questionable cases, an "F" (for female) or "M" (for male) will be shown in parentheses after the name if so noted in the original list. All surnames below are capitalized for easier scanning, although they were not necessarily capitalized in the original. The numerical columns to the right of each group of persons are copied as listed in the original tax lists. Each household is arbitrarily numbered, beginning with number "1" for each tax district, although such numbers were not present in the original documents.

PREFACE

Mortality censuses were compiled at ten year intervals from 1840 until 1880. Each census covered deaths occurring from June of the preceding year through May of the census year. The gatherers of information were called enumerators. The information they gathered is listed in the Order of Information pages following this preface.

We transcribed all four mortality censuses for the entire state of North Carolina. We then divided that body of data into thirteen volumes of approximately equal size. The number of then existing counties covered in each volume varies from four or five counties in the most densely populated areas to fifteen counties in the west. For each county formed after 1880 we have inserted a page in the appropriate volume. On that page we have indicated the parent counties that contributed territory and listed names of the townships within the new county.

We worked from microfilm which we obtained from the North Carolina State Archives. These rolls of microfilm contained photographs of the actual schedule pages on which the enumerators made their handwritten entries. We did have some problems: faded ink, indecipherable handwriting, ripped pages, blotches on some pages, and pages photographed with decedents' names partially concealed by the way the page was bound. When we encountered difficulty with an entire page, this is noted at the beginning of that page.

We left the spelling as we found it. Where we were in doubt as to the accuracy of our interpretation of a handwritten entry, we inserted a question mark in brackets or a possible alternative interpretation in brackets. When we couldn't decipher all of or part of a word, we used dashes to indicate the indecipherable letters. All question marks not in brackets, underlining, and parentheses are those of the enumerators. Concerning parentheses, it should be noted that in 1880 the enumerators were told to use parentheses to indicate information that was "estimated" or "conjectured". When a line was drawn through a word or an entire line, we did the same - i.e. copied the information and then put a line through it. All remarks, words or punctuation contained in [brackets] are ours.

The 1870 mortality census had an interesting feature. It was "edited" by someone. One person (the handwriting was all the same) went through the whole census crossing out causes of death and writing in somewhat different causes. We transcribed this faithfully, showing the original entry - drawing a line through it - and then typing the substitute entry.

A peculiarity appeared in column 5 (race) of the 1880 mortality census. Many times a "B" (Black) was written over an original "M" or "Mu" (Mulatto) entry. Our computer couldn't duplicate that. So in those cases the entry we show is [B/Mu].

Because of number of items of information for each individual, we couldn't use the columnar format of the mortality census schedules. Those schedule pages were much wider than the pages of this book. Instead we have shown the information for each decedent in the same order as it appeared (left-to-right) on the schedules. For the exact headings of those schedule columns, see the Order of Information pages following this preface. For your convenience, there is an Order of Information-Quick Reference on the inside of the front cover of the book.

Because schedules were in columnar format and our book is not, we had to make one other adjustment. The enumerators often used ditto marks within a column to indicate "same as above". Where we encountered ditto marks, we wrote out the entry in full and added an asterisk * to it.

The enumerators' spelling was a challenge. Their infinite variations of words such as diarrhea and pneumonia were wonderful. This is a problem for the modern researcher. However, if you think about it, it is hard to fault the enumerators. First, they were probably men of limited education by modern standards and few had any medical training. Second, information was given to them verbally and they had to put it into written form as best they could. Many of the spellings are obviously phonetic. The real wonder of it all is that they did as well as they did. After all, how many of us well educated modern Americans can spell DIAREA...I mean DIAHRREA...er, DIARHEA?? Oh, well, you get the idea.

There is another thing that must be mentioned. Occasionally in these volumes you may encounter an entry that is "impossible". For example, a three month old baby is said to die of old age. All we can tell you is that this is what the enumerator wrote. Second and third looks at the microfilm didn't change the reading. So, without editorial comment, we passed on to you exactly what we found.

We added three appendices to each volume to give perspective. Appendix I deals with causes of death. For the counties covered in the volume, it will tell you whether a particular individual's cause of death was singular or commonplace. And it will give you an idea of the diseases and hazards to which the people of the area were subject. Appendix II deals with life expectancy and longevity. Did a particular individual die young? Appendix II helps you answer this question by the standards of his or her own time. Appendix III deals with the accuracy of mortality census information.

In appendixes II and III we give our information in terms of Whites and Others, and collectively for all counties included in this volume. We could not deal with counties individually, or with the components of "Others" (Blacks, Mulattos, Indians), because the numbers become too small to maintain consistency and validity. The data did show consistent meaningful differences when separated into Whites and Others. In a way, this isn't surprising. This was the way these people thought about themselves. Indeed, the period of these mortality censuses is bisected by a terrible war that was largely caused by a desire to maintain that distinction.

You may notice that the number of deaths in 1880 was substantially higher than in the three preceding mortality censuses. Was this due to population growth? Or was there a higher death rate? The figures on the next page show that it was due to both of these causes.

	TOTAL POPULATION	GROWTH	TOTAL DEATHS	DEATHS PER 100 POPULATION
1850	869,039	1.000	10,152	1.168
1860	992,622	1.142 (+14%)	12,621	1.271
1870	1,071,361	1.233 (+8%)	10,624	0.992
1880	1,399,750	1.611 (+31%)	21,087	1.507

Death had a different impact on the lives of these nineteenth century Tarheels than it has on us today. The state-wide data from the four mortality censuses shows this in two ways:

- Infancy was extremely perilous. 37.6% of decedents were under age three! You have to wonder if the survivors were a hardier breed than we are simply because the weak-of-body and weak-of-will among them departed life very early.
- The mean median age of the 62.4% of decedents who survived infancy was 33! Death commonly occurred in a person's most active and productive years. It was part of the mainstream of life rather than something associated primarily with old age.

These mortality censuses raise many interesting questions. Look at the table above. Why did the death rate drop dramatically in 1870? Probably this was due, in some way, to the war. Infectious disease, with tuberculosis and typhoid fever leading the way, was the major killer. But influenza, which has been a major epidemic type killer in our century, is only an isolated, sporadic cause of death in these pages. And why did so many die so young when others lived to a very old age? (See Appendix II.) We will leave the answers to these and many other questions to historians and others who are more knowledgeable of the life and times of nineteenth century North Carolina. What we have done is to provide a faithful transcription of these old records which can serve as raw material for that purpose.

We hope that you will find this book interesting and useful.

1880 MORTALITY CENSUS COLUMN HEADINGS & NOTES

Schedule #5. Persons who Died during the Year ending May 31, 1880

1. Number of the family as given in column numbered 2 - Schedule 1.
2. Name of the person deceased.

Personal Description:

3. Age at last birthday. If under 1 year give months in fractions, thus - 3/12. If under 1 month, give days in fractions, thus - 9/30.
4. Sex- Male (M), Female (F).
5. Color- White (W), Black (B), Mulatto (Mu), Chinese (Ch), Indian I.
6. Single.
7. Married.
8. Widowed, Divorced D.

Nativity:

9. Place of birth of this person, naming the State or Territory of the U.S. or the country, if of foreign birth.
10. Where was the Father of this person born? as in column 9.
11. Where was the Mother of this person born? as in column 9.
12. Profession, Occupation or trade. (Not to be asked in respect to persons under 10 years of age.
13. The month in which the person died.
14. Disease or cause of death.
15. How long a resident of the county? If less than 1 year, state months in fractions, thus - 3/12.
16. If the disease was not contracted at place of death, state the place.
17. Name of attending Physician.

Note A. - The Census Year begins June 1, 1879, and ends May 31, 1880.

Note B. - In making entries in columns 6,7, and 8, an affirmative mark only will be used, thus /, except in the case of Divorced persons, column 8, when the letter "D" is to be used.

Note C. - For instructions relative to the entries in column 14, see back of this Schedule.

Note D. - In column 17, note distinctly if no Physician was in attendance, thus (None.).

Note E. - Upon this Schedule should be CAREFULLY RETURNED:

> 1st Every death which has occurred outside of this enumeration district during the Census year, whether the deceased was or was not, at death, a member of any family which resided June 1, 1880, in the district.
> 2d. Every death which has occurred outside of this enumeration district during the Census year, the deceased being at date of death a member of a family which resided June 1, 1880, in the enumeration district. The enumerator should make these entries upon this Schedule with great care, seeking every source of information. When a positive statement is impossible, as when an age can only be estimated, or a birth-place must be conjectured, the entry may be inclosed in parentheses, thus: Age (25), meaning that the best estimate of the age that can be given is 25 years.

Of the deaths reported above, the following occurred in the enumeration district, but the families to which the deceased belonged, resided June 1, 1880, out of the enumeration district, as follows:
Number of the line upon which the case is reported above.
Place where the family of the deceased resided June 1, 1880:

1880 MORTALITY CENSUS - INSTRUCTIONS TO ENUMERATORS

The important point in this Schedule is the question in column 14, headed "Disease or cause of death." Especial pains must be taken in this column to make the answer full and exact, and to this end, attention is called to the following points:

Enter the name of the primary disease in all cases, and where the immediate cause of death has been a complication or consequence of the primary disease, enter that also. For instance, enter all cases of death resulting either immediately or remotely from measles, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, remittent fever, small pox, &c, under the names of those diseases, but add also dropsy, hemorrhage from the bowels, pneumonia, &c, if these occured as complications and were the more immediate cause of death. In cases of death from hemorrhage from aortice aneurism, hemorrhage from wound of neck, &c. So also for abscess, aneurism, cancer, carbuncle, dropsy, tumor, ulcer, specify the organ or part affected, ad iliac abscess, abscess of liver; femoral aneurism; carbuncle on lip; cancer of breast, cancer of uterus, cancer of face; dropsy of chest, dropsy of abdomen; inflammation of brain, inflammation of liver; tumor of neck, tumor of abdomen; ulcer of face, ulcer of groin, &c. Typhus, typhoid, and typho-malarial fevers should be carefully distinguished. Especial inquiry should be made for cases of "still-births," including infants born dead from whatever cause. As few deaths as possible should be reported under such general terms as disease of the throat, disease of the brain, disease of the liver, disease of the lungs, disease of the bowels; disease of the spine, &c. These should, as far as possible, be reported under special heads.

Make sure that the distinction between apoplexy, epilepsy, and paralysis is understood. Distinguish between acute and chronic bronchitis, acute and chronic dysentery or diarrhea, acute and chronic rheumatism. Report cerebro-spinal meningitis as cerebro-spinal fever. Do not report as the cause of death old age, or intemperance, or debility, or paralysis of the heart; or sudden death, in any case where it is possible to name any definite disease. In reporting suicide name the means, whether cutting of throat, hanging, drowning, shooting, poisoning by opium, arsenic, &c.

A space is left at the bottom of each page of this Schedule for remarks. It is desired that the enumerators should there describe any particular malady or unusual or peculiar disease which has prevailed in the subdivision, and the supposed cause thereof. In case of any unusual number of deaths by violence or accident (as by the caving of a mine, or similar calamity), an explanation should be given in the space for remarks.

The enumerator should endeavor to see in person every physician residing in or near his enumeration district, who is named in this Schedule as the physician attending at death, and courteously invite him to inspect the entries in regard to the cause of death in his cases, and to verify or restate them as the facts may demand. For this purpose spaces are provided below, numbered to correspond with the lines of the Schedule upon the other side.

If the physician finds the entry in the Schedule correct and fully inaccordance with the foregoing instructions he is requested to make the entry in the proper numbered space below: Correctly stated. If he does not deem it correct, it is desired that he estate the cause of death in the numbered space in accordance with his own views, signing each entry.

The enumerator should also inquire of each physician within his enumeration district whether he has a record or register of deaths occuring during the Census year, kept at the request of the Superintendent of Census, and if so, will offer to take charge of and forward the same to the Census Office under his official Frank.

HO! FOR CALIFORNIA: NORTH CAROLINIANS AT THE GOLD RUSH, 1850

by Robert J. Cooke
7024 Lipscomb Dr., Wilmington, NC 28412

In 1848, shortly after the war with Mexico, gold was discovered in the newly acquired territory of California. This news set off one of the great migrations of the nineteenth century. People from thirty-one states as well as from Australia, France, England, Mexico, and Chile were represented. There was no safe route to the fields. If one went by ship, around Cape Horn (although the least expensive way), living conditions were not the best and there was always the danger of shipwreck. If one chose the more expensive Isthmus route (across Panama), it may have been quicker, but malaria was rampant, as the rivers were mosquito infested. Overland by wagon train was yet another route; it might take five or six months and starvation was a very real threat. On all three passages there was danger of cholera. One enterprising Northerner advertised that travelers could, for $50.00, take his "Aerial Locomotive" to the fields. His design was that of a modern airship, but his project literally never got off the ground![1]

North Carolina was well represented in those that flocked to the fields. Letters written home fueled the desire to partake of the riches. This, from a miner whose brother lived in the small North Carolina town of Wilmington:

> I have about $117,000 worth of Gold. The first month of the excitement, myself and companion collected upwards of seventeen pounds, but as the sickly season has commenced, I have left the mines. . . . Capt. Taylor has $70,000 in Gold. . . . I bought me a pair of boots yesterday and paid for them two ounces of Gold. I could not get them for less.[2]

It has been estimated that anywhere from 80,000 to 100,000 people made the trek to the gold fields. Late in 1850, a federal census was taken; an examination of these records indicates that most Argonauts were young (in their twenties) males. In 1849, women made up less than two percent of the population, while in 1850 it rose to only eight percent. One writer has recorded:

> The few homespun women in the mining towns were treated with an exaggerated deference that was more than gratifying; it was embarrassing. One lady wrote home that men had traveled forty miles just to gaze at her, and 'I was never called a handsome woman, even in my best days and even by my most ardent admirers.'[3]

In Raleigh a company was being formed of one hundred people, for the purpose of "gathering gold." Women were especially sought as:

> [W]ives are far scarcer, and in much greater demand than gold, in California, a few of the stout hearted and lovely girls, and widows, of the old North State, would assuredly find the enterprise a princely speculation-in immediately getting rich husbands in that fine country . . . .
> Our Carolina girls and widows, old and young, ugly and pretty, would go off like hot cakes . . . for husbands and gold![4]

From all over North Carolina, gold-seekers came to find their fortunes. It isn't known how these hardy adventurers fared, some found their fortune, most did not. One thing was certain, they had been there, they had indeed "Seen the Elephant."

The following is gleaned from that United States Federal Census of California in 1850. It is a listing of persons giving the State of North Carolina as their birthplace. Counties and entries are listed alphabetically. Parts of the original census were lost (San Francisco, Santa Clara, and Contra Costa). Each entry gives the person's name, age, and page number where that entry is found. Females are indicated by an asterisk, while Blacks and Mulattos are indicated by (B) or (M) after their name. As in any such record, there are errors (the miners tended to move around a lot!); in El Dorado County, the Gants are listed on page 283, (four persons ranging in age from 22 to 28). A few pages later are the Grants, same names, but a few years older!

GRANTOR/GRANTEE INDEX OF JOHNSTON, DOBBS, AND LENOIR COUNTIES

transcribed by Martha Mewborn Marble
1377 Independence Ave., SE, Washington, DC 20003

Johnston County, North Carolina, was formed in 1746. The records of early Johnston (and other counties formed from it), Wayne, Greene, and Lenoir counties were placed at the Lenoir County Courthouse. In 1878 a courthouse fire destroyed almost all these records except the original Grantee Index to deeds. According to Charles Holloman, a Grantor Index was prepared from the Grantee Index and both those books were saved during another fire in 1880. Charles Holloman was instrumental in locating the Grantee Book at the Courthouse in Kinston many years ago. It was not until the early 1980s that the Grantor Index was found. While there is nothing to indicate the nature of the instruments or the relationships between grantor and grantee, these books provide us with a list of names in otherwise "burned" or "partially burned" counties. This transcription was taken from the Grantor Index, but double checked against the Grantee Index for differences in spelling and entries that appear in one but not the other. (An asterisk following the page number denotes an entry which appears in the Grantor Index, but not in the Grantee; two asterisks denote an entry appearing in the Grantee Index, but not the Grantor; and parentheses enclose differences of name or spelling that appear in the Grantee Index.) Approximate dates of each deed book are listed at the front of the microfilm roll from which this is taken. This sentence is at the front of the roll: "Following Records have many carbon copies and light pencil or ink and will not be legible on film" so the reader should consult the original.

(A few entries have been compared with original deeds now in private hands.)

BLACK NORTH CAROLINA CONFEDERATE PENSIONERS

by Russell Scott Koonts
North Carolina State Archives

[Editor's Introduction: In the vast literature regarding the Civil War, black men in Confederate service have received little attention. However, North Carolina records do identify some of those men.

In March 1927 the North Carolina General Assembly amended the statutes relative to Confederate Pensions and provided for payment of $200.00 per year "to such colored servants who went with their masters to the war and can prove their service to the satisfaction of the county and State pension boards, . . ." (Public Laws of North Carolina, 1927, Chapter 96) Applications for pensions came not only from wartime body servants, but also from those who had served Confederate forces as cooks, washers, laborers, teamsters, and constructors of breastworks. Most of these men had been slaves before the War, but there were some who had been free before Emancipation. The records below reveal a few black men who had actually enlisted in the Confederate Army.

Mr. Koonts has rendered a valuable service to genealogists and historians by extracting the items below from the applications for Confederate Pensions in the North Carolina State Archives, Raleigh, North Carolina.]

MEMBERS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN PETERSBURG

by L.H.Hart

The following is a verbatim transcription of the list of members taken from the Manual for The Members of The Presbyterian Church in Petersburg, Virginia. This pamphlet was published in 1833 and lists members of the congregation from its inception in 1812, including various remarks of genealogical interest.

The following abbreviations were used according to the preface note: R.E. denotes Ruling Elder; D. Deacon; H. husband; W. wife; Wid. widow; S. and G.S. son and grandson; D. and G.D. daughter and granddaughter; B. brother; Sis. sister; C. cousin; D. died; Dis. dismissed; R. removed; A blank(---) signifies that the name of a person stands opposite the number in the record, who ceased to be a communicant in the Church.

Copies of this manual may be found at the Virginia State Library.

It is noted that there are several discrepancies in the abbreviations used in the remarks column, but these can usually be remedied by a thorough examination.

A List of Qualified Voters, Halifax County, Virginia, 1800

Contributed by Joanne Lovelace Nance

George Washington had died on 14 December 1799, and in June of the next year the new capital of the federal government, named for the first president, began to receive departmental workers. Thomas Jefferson would become the nation's third chief executive following a campaign in which he came under heavy fire from clergymen for his alleged deism. During his first term of office, Jefferson concluded the Louisiana Purchase, and the nation witnessed congressional authorization for statehood in the Northwestern Territory. In May of 1801, international problems erupted for the new Republic in the Mediterranean when Yusuf Karamanli, Pasha of Tripoli, ordered his troops to cut down the United States flag at its consulate.

The qualified voters for the presidential election of 1800 presented below have been transcribed from the original lists recorded in Halifax County, Virginia, Deed Book 18, pp. 461-468. Prevailing laws at the time restricted suffrage to white male property owners possessed of 100 acres, unsettled, or twenty-five acres, improved. In time, certain leaseholders would be franchised, but universal white male suffrage was not achieved in Virginia until 1851 (Chilton Williamson, American Suffrage, from Property to Democracy, 1760-1860 [1960], pp. 13-14, 113, 225). Readers are reminded that the 1800 federal census for Virginia is no longer extant.

GUIDE TO USING THE INDEX

This index is printed in five columns. The following paragraphs explain the meaning of each column with other necessary details for its use.

Column One

The first column lists in alphabetical order the names of the individuals found in the original record. An asterisk following a name indicates that the spelling of the name is in question. When given names are abbreviated on the original record, and the abbreviation is clearly understood, the name is written out in the index.

Column Two

The second column gives the page number.

Column Three

Column three gives the volume number.

Column Four

Column four gives the class number. This particular group of land grants began with volume one and went through volume twenty-three. Another group began with volume one and went through volume seventy-six. This latter group has been labeled class two. There are overlapping years between the two classes. All those that show CL 2, Class 22, Class I, etc. should be considered Class 2. In all cases Class 1 is left blank.

Column Five

The last column gives the year the land grant was issued. It is preceded by the letters "LG" which stands for "Land Grant".

INTRODUCTION

This volume is a continuation of the abstracts prepared under Clara Langley of the Works Progress Administration in the 1930s (published in four volumes by Southern Historical Press) and the volumes covering the years 1773-1783 which I published in 1993 and 1994. Until the establishment of county courts in South Carolina in 1785, all deeds were recorded in Charleston. The original deed books remain in the Office of the Register of Mesne Conveyance in the Charleston County Court House. [Mesne conveyance means intermediate conveyance, i. e., one between a grant and another instrument or, simply, deeds.] I have prepared the abstracts in this volume from microfilm of those deed books. While the deeds in these deed books (I-5 through Z-5) were recorded between 1783 and 1788, within these deed books are instruments dating from a much earlier time, some as early as 1703. Additionally, the derivation clauses in many deeds trace titles to early land grants, some during the proprietary period (prior to 1720). While the constitution of South Carolina adopted on 19 March 1778, provided for a register of deeds in each district, there is no indication that this aim was accomplished. The years 1785 and 1786 saw the development of counties and county governments in South Carolina (see maps on pages 555-556). While there were registers of mesne conveyance established in these counties, some persons continued to record their deeds in Charleston. The mention of county names such as Union, Winton, Spartanburg, Lexington, and others in these Charleston deeds are indicative of this practice. In the districts of Charleston, Georgetown, and Beaufort the counties which had been established declined to function. However, the district seats appointed registers of mesne conveyance. Nevertheless, some deeds from the districts of Beaufort and Georgetown continued to be recorded in Charleston as well. In 1786 registers were commissioned in the districts of Beaufort and Georgetown, according to the statement provided by the South Carolina Department of Archives and History at the beginning of deed book A-5. One will note that there are often several deed books containing deeds recorded in the same years. There are also occasional notations, especially in the case of mortgages, dated later than the recording dates of the deeds or mortgages. Sometimes other legal instruments are recorded in deed books. The will of Moses Bass of Georgetown District from 1777 is recorded in Deed Book S-5, pages 283-284. The original will having been destroyed with the other Georgetown records happily survives here.

After the border surveys between the two Carolinas in 1764 and 1772, many lands formerly deemed to be in North Carolina fell into South Carolina. For that reason some deeds refer to lands granted by North Carolina, sometimes called "north patents." For the same reason, some deeds formerly recorded in North Carolina, particularly in Anson County, were re-recorded in the Charleston deed books. A few actual grants and plats from North Carolina are re-recorded. In the period beginning in 1783 we find some deeds recorded from the Commissioners of Forfeited Estates and the Commissions of Confiscated Estates. Within the bodies of such deeds are found the names of such persons whose land had been confiscated, usually indicated as "lands formerly the property of...." The names of these persons are not indicated in the deed index, only the persons who purchased the land. Therefore, these abstracts will provide clues as to the disposition of lands of many Loyalists.

The old forms of lease and release were still common in the period covered by these abstracts. There is no particular significance to this form, the lease usually dated one day prior to the release. Together, the lease and release should be considered one instrument. Both lease and release have been examined for these abstracts, because the same information is not always recorded in both. Frequently, the wife signed only the release portion of the deed. The release usually gives a more complete chain of title and a more complete description of the tract conveyed in the instrument. Sometimes dower relinquishments by the wives of the grantors were recorded in a paragraph at the end of the deed or as a separate instrument following the deed and these are included. There are also other dower relinquishments, volumes of which are now preserved in the South Carolina Archives and indexed in the Archives' COM Index. The mentions in some deeds for lands having been "entered in the auditor's office" with a volume and page indication refer to the land memorials, a fourteen volume series of records in the South Carolina Archives. These land memorials are also included in the Archives' COM Index. Land Memorials are registrations of land for the purpose of collecting taxes, called Quit Rents, on the lands. The memorials give the derivation of each tract of land, whether obtained by grant, deed, inheritance, or marriage.

In the Colonial period, South Carolina had only four counties, and these four counties extended from the sea to the mountains: Granville, Colleton, Berkeley, and Craven. Craven County, being all of South Carolina north of the Santee River, was the largest county by area. The Santee River did not extend into the upper (western) part of South Carolina. The Congaree River may have been used as the line between Craven and Berkeley counties and, farther west, the Saluda River was considered an extension of the Santee River. However, sometimes the Broad River was used as the dividing line. Therefore, the area between the Broad and Saluda might be considered either Craven County or Berkeley County, South Carolina. The entire province was also divided into parishes. While they were not quite so meaningful in the western part of South Carolina, the parishes were fairly distinct in the coastal area. Another political division was the circuit court district. South Carolina was divided into seven such districts in 1769: Ninety Six, Camden, Cheraw, Georgetown, Charleston, Orangeburg(h), and Beaufort. Some deeds contain all three of these designations: county, parish, and district. These designations, coupled with the watercourses mentioned in the deeds, are helpful in determining the present-day county location of many of the lands conveyed in the colonial deeds. In the year 1784 some former Indian territory was opened for settlement, an area later to be defined as Pendleton County. Some deeds for lands granted in that area were recorded in Charleston, since there was no county court for that area at the time.

As anyone familiar with early records knows, variant spellings of names are frequently the rule rather than the exception. The spelling of the name of the original grantee recorded in a deed may be quite different from the name which appears on the grant for that tract. The description of the land and names of the adjacent land owners must frequently be examined to determine the location of the land. It is my hope that these abstracts will aid genealogists and historians working in the Colonial, Revolutionary, and pre-county periods in South Carolina. At the present I have no plans to continue this work further. While there are some deeds from all parts of South Carolina recorded in these Charleston deed books still later, there are fewer of them in the later years. I suggest that anyone check the Charleston deed index for the possibility of such deeds. My thanks goes to Mr. James D. McKain for preparing the indices to this work.

INTRODUCTION

This volume is a continuation of the abstracts prepared under Clara Langley of the Works Progress Administration in the 1930s and published in four volumes by Southern Historical Press. Until the establishment of county courts in South Carolina in 1785, all deeds were recorded in Charleston. The original deed books remain in the Office of the Register of Mesne Conveyance in the Charleston County Court House. I have prepared the abstracts in this volume from microfilm of those deed books. While the deeds in these deed books (F-4 through X-4) were recorded between 1773 and 1778, within these deed books are instruments dating from a much earlier time, some as early as 1706. Additionally, the derivation clauses in many deeds trace titles to early land grants, some during the proprietary period (prior to 1720). One will note that there are often several deed books containing deeds recorded in the same years. There are also occasional notations, especially in the case of mortgages, dated later than the recording dates of the deeds or mortgages. After the border surveys between the two Carolinas in 1764 and 1772, many lands formerly deemed to be in North Carolina fell into South Carolina. For that reason some deeds refer to lands granted by North Carolina, sometimes called "north patents." For the same reason, some deeds formerly recorded in North Carolina, particularly in Tryon County, were re-recorded in the Charleston deed books.

The old forms of lease and release were still common in the period covered by these abstracts. There is no particular significance to this form, the lease usually dated one day prior to the release. Together, the lease and release should be considered one instrument. Both lease and release have been examined for these abstracts, because the same information is not always recorded in both. Frequently, the wife signed only the release portion of the deed. The release usually gives a more complete chain of title and a more complete description of the tract conveyed in the instrument. Sometimes dower relinquishments by the wives of the grantors were recorded in a paragraph at the end of the deed or as a separate instrument following the deed and these are included. There are also separate volumes of dower relinquishments, which volumes are now preserved in the South Carolina Archives and indexed in the Archives' COM Index.

In the Colonial period, South Carolina had only four counties, which extended from the sea to the mountains: Granville, Colleton, Berkeley, and Craven. Craven County, being all of South Carolina north of the Santee River, was the largest county by area. The Santee River did not extend into the upper (western) part of South Carolina. The Congaree River may have been used as the line between Craven and Berkeley counties and further west, the Saluda River was considered an extension of the Santee River. However, sometimes the Broad River was used as the dividing line. Therefore, the area between the Broad and Saluda might be considered either Craven County or Berkeley County. The entire province was also divided into parishes. While they were not quite so meaningful in the western part of South Carolina, the parishes were fairly distinct in the coastal area. Another political division was the circuit court district. South Carolina was divided into seven such districts in 1769: Ninety Six, Camden, Cheraw, Georgetown, Charleston, Orangeburg(h), and Beaufort. Some deeds contain all three designations: county, parish, and district. These designations, coupled with the watercourses mentioned in the deeds, are helpful in determining the present-day county location of many of the lands conveyed in the colonial deeds. Maps of the counties, parishes, and districts are included herein as an aid.

As anyone familiar with early records knows, variant spellings of names are frequently the rule rather than the exception. The spelling of the name of the original grantee recorded in a deed may be quite different from the name which appears on the grant for that tract. The description of the land and names of the adjacent land owners must frequently be examined to determine the location of the land. It is my hope that these abstracts will be an aid to genealogists and historians working in South Carolina's colonial period.

Granville County Township Descriptions

Gentlemen. In obedience to the Constitution of North Carolina Article 9 Section 3 the Commissioners of Granville County do most respectfully present to your Honorable body a map and survey of the said county of Granville shewing therein eleven townships or school districts marked and named as follows: to wit; Townsville, Sassafras Fork, Oak Hill, Walnut Grove, Oxford, Henderson, Kittrells, Fishing Creek, Tally Ho, Dutchville, Brassfields.

Your commissioners beg to report that the townships as marked are all eight miles square excepting only Townsville and Brassfields and some small points on the Wake County line also a small dificiency in Kittrells township on the corner at Tar river. Your commissioners could not lay off the county otherwise with out loosing the old public school houses now standing. The townships are herein represented generally embrace from of the old original school districts of four miles square each with the school houses now standing in the center of those old districts.

Townsville and Brassfields townships are larger but the prevailing opinion is that for some years those were by no occasion to alter them and when if should be desired or important to do so the survey to redraw them will not be laborious or very expensive.

All of which is most respectfully submitted.

Lewis H. Kittle Chairman Board County Commissioners
15 Dec. 1868

WAKE COUNTY

Although Wake was formed in 1770 from Johnston, Cumberland, and Orange, the act was not to become effective 12 March 1771. The County is in the east central section of the State and is bounded by Johnston, Harnett, Chatham, Durham, Granville, and Franklin counties. In 1805 the establishment of the boundary line between Franklin and Wake was authorized according to the act which established Granville county. In 1810 the establishment of the boundary line between Franklin and Wake was authorized. Durham was formed in 1881 from Orange and Wake, and another part of Wake was annexed to Durham County in 1911.

Introduction

The index to the Old Wars Pension Files 1815-1926 was obtained from microfilm records located at the National Archives. The "Old Wars" files are primarily for claims based on death or disability incurred in the military service between the end of the Revolutionary War in 1783 and the beginning of the Civil War in 1861. The claims are for service in the US Army, US Navy and the US Marine Corps. Some of the claims are for service during the War of 1812, the Indian Wars, the Mexican War and some claims are for Civil War service, while other claims are based upon death or disability incurred by accident or illness and not due to any hostile action.

The information in each entry varies considerably. All entries are indexed under the name of the veteran and contain all or part of the following; name of veteran and any aliases used, name of widow and surname if remarried and in some cases the name of 2nd husband, names of minors, numbers for certificates, applications and files, state or country from which claim was made, date claim was filed, war and or dates served, in many of the Navy claims the name of the ship or ships served on are listed, several of the claims have the date and place of death of the soldier or sailor and a few list the widows death date. Cross-references to files in other series are included when appropriate.

Reproductions of specific pension records corresponding to entries in the index may be obtained from the National Archives for a fee. Requests for such reproductions should give the name of the series "Old Wars Pension Files 1815-1926" as well as the information provided in the index. Extensive use of abbreviations were used to save space and to reduce the cost of the index. A list of these abbreviations is included and should be referenced when ordering copies of pension records. Copies of pension records can be obtained by mail using Form NATF 80, which may be ordered from the References Services Branch (NNIR), General Services Adminstration, Washington, D.C. 20408.

The microfilm from which this index was prepared was clear for most of the entries, however there were some that were very dim, some were blurred and in a few of the entries the handwriting was illegible, hopefully the mistakes have been kept to a minimum. If you wish to review the microfilm from which this index was taken, order Microfilm Publication #T316 for which there are 7 rolls, from the National Archives.

Explanation of Entries

RAY, Jacob, Pvt, Old War IC-6250 file #50 TN 1850, Mex War S-O # 5364 & SC-3213, W-O #13814, Civil War IC-577460 & WC-10842.

This entry indicates that the soldier's name was Jacob Ray and that he was a Pvt. He received an Old Wars Invalid Pension, certificate #6250 and located in file #50. He filed the claim in Tennessee in 1850. He also filed for a pension for his Mexican War service, claim #5364 and received a Survivor's Pension, certificate #3213, his widow also filed a claim based upon his Mexican War service, claim #13814. Both he and his widow received a pension for his Civil War service, certificates #577460 & #10842.

Some of the entries have an application number with an R in front of the number, this indicates that the application was rejected. Sometimes there will be considerable information in a rejected file. Some of the entries have Reb in front of a number and others have Civil War, both of these indicate Civil War service, the Reb meaning the War of Rebellion and not Rebel. In many of the entries the widow's given name is followed by a name other than that of the soldier, which indicates that she had remarried. Several of the entries will refer to a claim or claims based upon the service of a 2nd husband. Several of the files formerly in the Old Wars Series have been transferred to other files such as the Indian Wars, Mexican War or Civil War, this is usually indicated by the words "trans to" or "See".

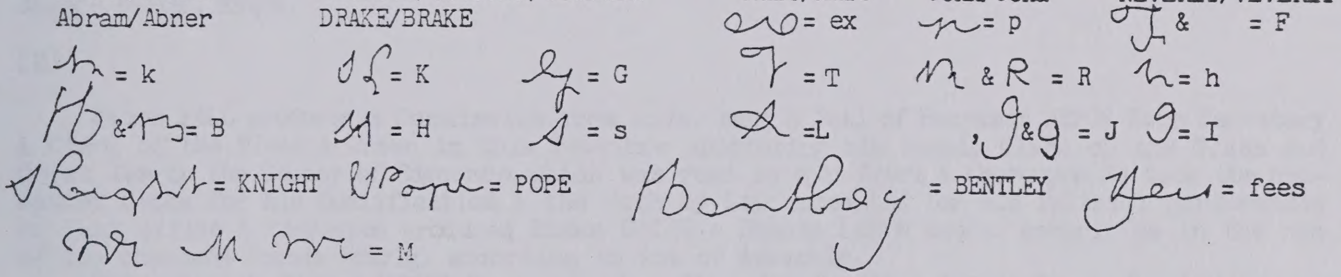
North Carolina State Archives
Raleigh, N. C.

As usual with most ancient records, many reading problems were encountered. Over the years the paper has become brittle and in some cases the pages are torn with parts missing. This information is lost forever. In other places the ink has faded beyond legibility. Some time it is possible to determine there is writing but it is impossible to read. The minutes from February 1773 to April 1774 are missing. Also, each clerk's handwriting presented varying reading problems. Many letters and words looked alike. This particularly created problems with personal names. Following are a few of the look-alike names as well as letters:

STANTON/HUNTER
JAMES/JONES
Abram/Abner
COKER/CAKE
GOODSON/GOODROW/GOODRON
DRAKE/BRAKE
GREEN/GUIN
DEW/DEES
MAYS/MAYO
ROSS/ROSE
John/Jehu
WELLS/WILLS
NEVERIT/VEVERIT



------= marked thru and illegible   prod = sic
~~John~~ = marked thru. If name is legible it is included in the index.
_____ = missing letter/word.

Most of the original pages do not appear to have been numbered but every other page bears a stamped number. For indexing purposes and to conserve search time, EACH original page has been assigned a number. These assigned numbers appear in the left margin in square backets and are the page numbers referred to in the index. When a name is found in the index, check the entire page as names may appear more than once on any given page. The numbers appearing to the right of the numbers in square brackets are the stamped numbers, i. e. [121]-45 indicates assigned page number 121 and original page number 45. When ordering copies of the original pages, include the stamped page numbers.
